

Disney should take a lesson from Burger King - Places - Rants - Geek-Rant

Written by The Geek
Monday, 31 August 2009 00:00

---

So I had the pleasure of spending the last 3 days in Orlando with my oldest daughter, who just turned 16. Sure, I overindulged her with shows and food and games and such, but you only turn 16 once, so this was a special treat. So when we walked into the "Design-a-Tee" store in Downtown Disney, we were expecting to be able to design our own t-shirt, not a lesson in how NOT to do things.

So, as I was saying, we're in Downtown Disney and we see this store, Design-a-tee. We think it would be cool to go home with custom made t-shirts, so in we go:

So what you have are all these little self-serve kiosks where you can design your own t-shirt. My daughter and I each pick one and design a shirt. My shirt had a picture of the cute little alien from Toy Story. As a caption, I had it say "Take me 2 ur wimmin". I thought it was very amusing, and was even thinking about getting a matching shirt for my 11 yr old boy. Here's the alien:

Disney should take a lesson from Burger King - Places - Rants - Geek-Rant

Written by The Geek
Monday, 31 August 2009 00:00

---

